

ABSTRACT

A plug structure has a base defining a plurality of slots formed therein, a plurality of contacts arranged in the slots, a connection member defining a plurality of slits formed in a front thereof, and a plurality of conduction cords
5 receiving in the slits. The connection member has an orientation member disposed thereon to press the conduction cords for electrically connecting the conduction cords to be more securely fastened.